

APUSH Workbook Unit 1: Exploration, Discovery, Colonization; Pre-Columbian Indians _____
(and Summer Assignment)

There is a summer reading assignment for APUSH. This summer assignment has four parts.

- 1) You are to read Carl Becker's "Everyman His Own Historian," a speech he delivered as the president of the American Historical Association. The speech can be found online at:

www.historians.org/info/aha_history/clbecker.htm

The speech is also found via the link from Wikipedia's "Carl L. Becker":

You are to answer the following questions about doing history:

1. Why does Becker say that we can never be sure of the past?
2. What is the only way, according to Becker, to test the past?
3. What two histories are there, according to Becker? What is Becker's point?
4. What place does anticipation of the future have in the writing of history?
5. What does Becker mean by saying it is impossible to divorce history from life?
6. Why do you think Becker says history changes from generation to generation?
7. Why is it more important for history to be useful than true, according to Becker?
8. By what are all historians limited?
9. What is the illusion of present day historians?
10. Why can man and the world be understood only tentatively? Do you agree with Becker? Why?

- 2) Read the first chapter of Kennedy's The American Pageant, 15th edition, Ch. 1 "New World Beginnings." or, read online at www.americanypawp.com/text, 1. The New World and 2. Colliding Cultures

- 3) Fill in the Pre-Columbian Indian Chart. If you Google "Comparison Chart Native American Tribes" or "Native American Charts" or "Native American Comparison Charts" you will get lots of information.
- 4) Fill in the chart "European Colonization of the Americas." The information is found on YouTube under Tom Richey APUSH Review Playlist. Watch these episodes: "Spanish Colonization of the Americas," "French Colonization of the Americas," "New Netherlands," "English Colonization of the Americas." Your quiz will be to fill this chart out by memory on first day of class.

There will be three quizzes upon your return from summer break: 1) "Every Man His Own Historian" ,2) regional differences between Native Americans, and on "European Colonization of the Americas."

Advanced Placement United States History (APUSH) Course Description

Mr. Watson

Course Description

APUSH is a full year college-level course designed to provide students with analytical skills and factual knowledge necessary to deal critically with the events of United States history. Students will examine the political, social, economic, religious, military, and cultural events that have affected the rise and growth of our nation.

The curriculum has been structured to help students prepare for the 3 hour national AP exam in May. Students who pass the exam can get university credit. The exam costs ~$90. The exam is scored on a scale of 1-5, where 3 is passing, 4 is very good, and 5 is excellent. All students are required to prepare for and take the exam. A bonus in this course is that students do not have to take a second semester final exam. (Yes, you will take a first semester exam.)

Objectives:

- Master a broad body of knowledge about U.S. history
- Demonstrate an understanding of the great issues at the heart of U.S. history
- Differentiate between historical schools of thought ("historiography")
- Use historical data to support and argument or position
- Interpret and apply data from original documents, including cartoons, graphs, letters, etc.
- Effectively use analytical skills of evaluation, cause and effect, compare and contrast
- Improve writing and critical thinking skills
- Prepare for and successfully pass the May APUSH exam

General Information:

Expectations: Because this class in many ways is like a college class, there will be more reading and writing than in most high school classes. You can expect to read every night and you will write 17 essays. Because the bulk of the exam is testing of your recall of historical information, it is virtually impossible to pass the AP exam if you have been shirking your study obligation. This class is cumulative, meaning what we cover in August will be on the May exam. Studying notes every day and reviewing throughout the year must be standard procedure.

The unit syllabus will have the due dates of all assignments and test and quiz dates. Homework not turned in is a zero. (Exception: Late essays are graded down 10% per day, including weekends.) If you miss class, it is your job to come to me and turn in items that are due and to get material you missed. Because the national exam occurs a month before the end of school, we cannot afford to squander time with frivolous absenteeism or tardiness. Three tardies = a detention. If you are not seated when the bell rings you are late.

I am looking forward to a year that is both academically challenging and personally enriching as we work together as scholars to master American History for the big May exam.

Grading: 40% Tests, 30% Essays, 25% Quizzes, 5% Homework and Notebook checks

Materials:

An alert mind, Kennedy's The American Pageant, other readings will be listed on the unit syllabus and passed out when needed, a notebook, pencil/pen. A review book is optional and recommended.

APUSH Standards Unit 1 (1607-1754)
The spread of maize cultivation from present-day Mexico northward into the present-day American Southwest and beyond supported settlement, advanced irrigation, and social diversification among societies.
Societies responded to the aridity of the Great Basin and the grasslands of the western Great Plains by developing largely mobile lifestyles.
In the Northeast, the Mississippi River Valley, and along the Atlantic seaboard some societies developed mixed agriculture and hunter-gatherer economies that favored the development of permanent villages.
Societies in the Northwest and present-day California supported themselves by hunting and gathering, and in some areas developed settled communities supported by the vast resources of the ocean.
European nation's effort to explore and conquer the New World stemmed from a search for new sources of wealth, economic and military competition, and a desire to spread Christianity.
The Columbian Exchange brought new crops to Europe from the Americas, stimulating European population growth, and new sources of mineral wealth, which facilitated the European shift from feudalism to capitalism.
Improvements in maritime technology and more organized methods for conducting international trade, such as joint-stock companies, helped drive changes to economies in Europe and the Americas.

Spanish exploration and conquest of the Americas were accompanied and furthered by widespread deadly epidemics that devastated native populations and by the introduction of crops and animals not found in the Americas.
In the encomienda system, Spanish colonial economies marshaled Native America labor to support plantation-based agriculture and extract precious metals and other resources.
European traders partnered with some West African groups who practiced slavery to forcibly extract slave labor for the Americas. The Spanish imported enslaved Africans to labor in plantation agriculture and mining.
The Spanish developed a caste system that incorporated, and carefully defined the status of, the diverse population of Europeans, Africans, and Native Americans in their empire.
Mutual misunderstandings between Europeans and Native Americans often defined the early years of interaction and trade as each group sought to make sense of the other. Over time, Europeans and Native Americans adopted some useful aspects of each other's culture.
As European encroachments on Native American's lands and demands on their labor increased, native peoples sought to defend and maintain their political sovereignty, economic prosperity, religious beliefs, and concepts of gender relations through diplomatic negotiations and military resistance.
Extended contact with Native Americans and Africans fostered a debate among European religious and political leaders about how non-Europeans should be treated, as well as evolving religious, cultural, and racial justifications for the subjugation of Africans and Native Americans.

Spanish efforts to extract wealth from the land led them to develop institutions based on subjugating native populations, converting them to Christianity, and incorporating them, along with enslaved and free Africans, into the Spanish colonial society.
French and Dutch colonial efforts involved relatively few Europeans and relied on trade alliances and intermarriage with American Indians to build economic and diplomatic relationships and acquire furs and other products for export to Europe.
English colonization efforts attracted a comparatively large number of male and female British migrants, as well as other European migrants, all of whom sought social mobility, economic prosperity, religious freedom, and improved living conditions. These colonists focused on agriculture and settled on land taken from Native Americans, from whom they lived separately.
The Chesapeake and North Carolina colonies grew prosperous exporting tobacco- a labor-intensive product initially cultivated by white, mostly male indentured servants and later by enslaved Africans.
The New England colonies, initially settled by Puritans, developed around small towns with family farms and achieved a thriving mixed economy of agriculture and commerce.
The middle colonies supported a flourishing export economy based on cereal crops and attracted a broad range of European migrants, leading to societies with greater cultural, ethnic, and religious diversity and tolerance.

The colonies of the southern Atlantic coast and the British West Indies used long growing seasons to develop plantation economies based on exporting staple crops. They depended on the labor of enslaved Africans, who often constituted the majority of the population in these areas and developed their own forms of cultural and religious autonomy.
Distance, and Britain's initially lax attention led to the colonies creating self-governing institutions that were unusually democratic for the era. The New England colonies based power in participatory town meetings, which in turn elected members to their colonial legislatures, elite planters exercised local authority and also dominated the elected assemblies.
An Atlantic economy developed in which goods, as well as enslaved Africans and American Indians, were exchanged between Europe, Africa, and the Americas through extensive trade networks. European colonial economies focused on acquiring, producing, and exporting commodities that were valued in Europe and gaining new sources of labor.
Continuing trade with Europeans increased the flow of goods in and out of American Indian communities, stimulating cultural and economic changes and spreading diseases that caused radical demographic shifts.
Interactions between European rivals and American Indian populations fostered both accommodation and conflict. French, Dutch, British, and Spanish colonies allied with and armed American Indian groups, who frequently sought alliances with Europeans against other American Indian groups.

The goals and interests of European leaders and colonists at times diverges, leading to a growing mistrust on both sides of the Atlantic. Colonists, especially in British North America, expressed dissatisfaction over issues including territorial settlements, frontier defense, self-rule, and trade.
British conflicts with American Indians over land, resources, and political boundaries led to military confrontations, such as Metacom's War (King Philip's War) in New England.
American Indian resistance to Spanish colonizing efforts in North America, particularly after the Pueblo Revolt, led to Spanish accommodation of some aspects of American Indian culture in the Southwest.
The presence of different European religious and ethnic groups contributed to a significant degree of pluralism and intellectual exchange, which were later enhanced by the First Great Awakening, and the spread of Enlightenment ideas.
The British colonies experienced a gradual Anglicization over time, developing autonomous political communities based on English models with influence from intercolonial commercial ties, the emergence of a trans-Atlantic print culture, and the spread of Protestant evangelicalism.
The British government increasingly attempted to incorporate its North American colonies into a coherent, hierarchical, and imperial structure in order to pursue mercantilist economic aims, but conflicts with colonists and American Indians led to erratic enforcement of imperial policies.
Colonists' resistance to imperial control drew on local experiences of self-government, evolving ideas of liberty, the political thought of the Enlightenment, greater religious independence and diversity, and an ideology critical of perceived corruption in the imperial system.

All the British colonies participated to varying degrees in the Atlantic slave trade due to the abundance of land and a growing European demand for colonial goods, as well as a shortage of indentured servants. Small New England farms used relatively few enslaved laborers, all port cities held significant minorities of enslaved people, and the emerging plantation systems of the Chesapeake and the southern Atlantic coast had large numbers of enslaved workers, while the great majority of enslaved Africans were sent to the West Indies.
As chattel slavery became the dominant labor system in many southern colonies, new laws created a strict racial system that prohibited interracial relationships and defined the descendants of African American mothers as black and enslaved in perpetuity.
Africans developed both overt and covert means to resist the dehumanizing aspects to slavery and maintain their family and gender systems, culture, and religion.
